A struggle for life

On the night of 12th May, Asma' from Bethlehem was rushed to a general hospital. Asma', 28 years, holding a Bachelor degree in nursing, was pregnant and is already a mother for a baby girl, Lamar, who is one-year old. Eslam, her husband drove her to the hospital at night where, unexpectedly, she delivered at 26 gestational weeks. A baby girl was born to the family. Mayar, the new baby was alive but weak with a birth weight of 560gr. She was kept in an incubator where doctors believed her chance to survive and live was minimal, thus nothing was really done to help her efforts.

Few hours later, the strong signs of life and the fight of this premature soul, surprised the doctors who were obliged to take action. Mayar was still breathing and holding strongly to her life!

At midnight, the ambulance stopped in front of our hospital bringing this newborn to the Neonatal Intensive Care unit. She was immediately intubated and was given the Surfactant medication to open the lungs and help her breath easier. Today, to the surprise of all, Mayar weights 690gr, in a good condition and almost stable.

Let's all pray and hope she will pass this critical situation and grow into a healthy strong baby.
