Is history an eternal restart?

Last April, Mgr Macaire, Archbishop of Saint-Pierre and Fort-de-France, published a text based on the demonstration method: the more Gruyère there is, the more holes there are. The more holes, the less cheese. So the more Gruyère there is, the less cheese there is. It is a real problem similar to that of the cheap horse.

In his post he tells us about a man who said "My grandfather walked 16 km, my father walked 8, I drive a Cadillac, my son is in a Mercedes and my grandson will be in a Ferrari... but my great-grandson will walk again". Why ? Because hard times make strong men, strong men make easy times, easy times make weak men, and weak men make hard times." I believe the hard times are back... That's good news somewhere: our grandsons will walk again, they will be poorer, but they will be more worthy than their fathers!

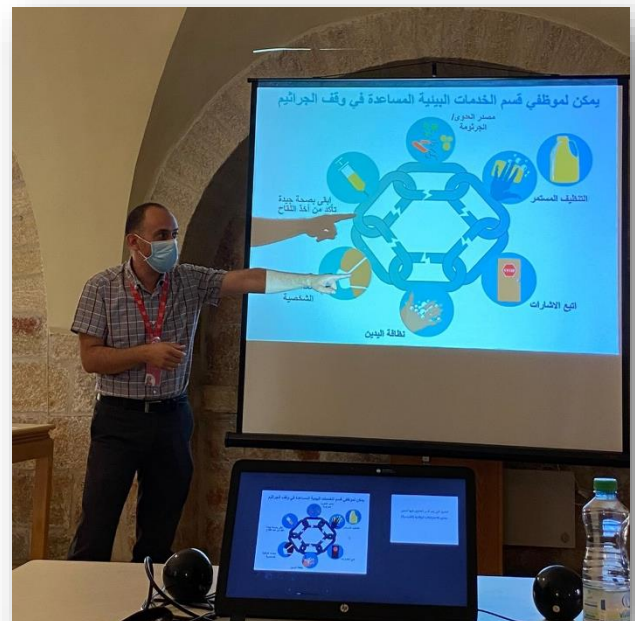

May God make the children born here in the hospital, more and more every year, contradict this prediction and show everyone that they have never stopped walking and standing and that they are worth as much as their fathers and grandfathers were worth and proud!
